

sailing the boat /1/ boat way to say never

Rachel: So, when are we getting back out on the water? I can't wait to see you sail that beautiful boat.

Joey: Oh, I don't know the boat way to say this, but never! Don't look at me like you don't know what I'm talking about. You're mean on the boat!

Rachel: You didn't know the first thing about sailing. I was just trying to teach you.

Joey: Well, lesson learned! Rachel is mean and when her friends ask her to teach them how to sail she treats them like dirt.

Ross: You can say that again. When we were still dating and she took me out on her dad's boat she wouldn't let me help at all, no matter how much I begged.

Rachel: Excuse me, I wanted you to help, but you couldn't move your arms because you were wearing three life jackets.

Ross: You have to respect the sea. And FYI, I was only wearing them so there would be more room on the boat.
