

life of brian /2/ yes, mother

"What is it?" asked Timo. "Some kind of model helicopter?"

"Does it look like a helicopter? Don't you know the difference _____ a helicopter and an autogyro?"

"No," he said. "_____ I?" Timo doesn't pay _____ to the world around him except to consider what would make a good photograph.

"I don't see any motor," said Timo. "How's it _____ get off the ground?"

"You have to get a tow."

"So _____ does it do you to have one if you don't know anybody with an airplane to tow you?"

"Never mind," I said. I didn't _____ talking to him any more.

"Are you boys cleaning your room?" My mother was calling up to us from the bottom of the stairs. We live up in the attic, or what _____ the attic before my father fixed it up.

"Yes, mother," said Timo. In a situation like this, _____ to call her mother _____ mom.

"It doesn't sound like it," she said.

"We had to discuss how to _____ the work," said Timo.

between

feel like

instead of

much attention

should

split up

supposed to

used to be

we're supposed

what good