

life of brian /3/ foxes & submarines

So we didn't talk about the autogyro _____ that day. But we _____ talk about it that night, when we _____ supposed to go to bed. We usually spend about an hour talking after the lights _____, until mom or dad calls up the stairs, "_____ talking. Go to sleep." Sometimes Timo tells lies. Like, he tells me that he sees foxes walking between our room and the stairs. Somehow Timo can almost _____ me when he starts telling lies like that, _____ he's younger than I am. It's _____.

On this _____ night, Timo didn't tell any lies. We just talked _____ about the autogyro. I told Timo about the article. _____ that, thanks to a new design, anybody could _____ it together in a couple of nights. You didn't need a pilot's license, not _____ for the motorized version. Still, I concentrated on the _____ expensive model, _____ without the motor. The article said that you could tow it behind a car. It said that in the Second World War a lot of submarines had autogyros attached to them. _____ sat in the autogyro could see a long distance over the ocean.
