

caps lock /1/ a hubby chore

Well, I finally finished the spring housecleaning. Now I understand why people _____ houses a good cleaning only once a year. _____. We didn't have dust bunnies, we had dust bears. And my vacuum cleaner was working so much overtime it _____ on strike.

But the worst chore of all must have been cleaning out the closets. The clutter had to _____ believed. Call me a sentimental sap, but I just can't bring myself _____ my old pillows. And I found out I still have some of the stuff the school nurse gave us in seventh grade gym class.

But hubby Rick is even worse. This _____ when I yanked out one of the drawers from our bed and pulled out a stack of the grimeiest-looking baseball caps you've ever seen. And they're not just dirty literally, the caps have dirty sayings _____. Now, I don't usually have a problem with sayings on caps, some of them are really clever. Just _____ I couldn't resist buying one _____, "Physically Fit... To Eat Chocolate."

But Rick's are the most _____ things I have ever seen. One had a picture of a drunk at a bar saying, "If You Saw My Wife, You'd Drink Too." And I _____ when I saw, "No Fat Chicks." I never felt so humiliated in all my life. This was worse than _____ read my diary. It was like Rick was making fun of me in the crudest way possible in front of his friends and co-workers at the tire center, and I had no _____ back.

.....

almost went » be seen to be » became clear » give their » nearly flipped out » offensive and tasteless » on them too » that said » the other day » the time Rick » to toss out » way to fight » what a chore