

the card game (4) full house

Ross: You'd _____ know what you're doing. I see your twenty, raise you twenty-five.

Rachel: You don't have to worry about me. I see your twenty-five and... Monica, _____ my purse. Oh, there's nothing in it. Well, get me your purse.

Ross: Ok, what have you got? Full house, huh? Well, you got me. I mean, that's a _____ hand to beat.

Rachel: Let me see your cards. ... Hey, your hand's better than mine! You could _____ won! What is this _____ to mean?

Ross: Nothing. It's just that it would break my heart to _____ you lose this game, that's all.

Rachel: I don't need you to _____ me. I'm strong enough to deal with this on my own.

Ross: Of course you are. I just wanted to make you feel a little better, seeing as _____ aren't _____ out for you right now. Look, maybe I was wrong to let you win but I just couldn't _____ doing it.

Rachel: Whatever, Ross. I'd _____ you saved your sympathy for someone that you still have a _____ with because this ship has sailed.

better » get » have » help » humor » rather » see » shot » supposed » things » tough » working