

Hello sir. Do you have any idea why you've been pulled over? -- Absolutely not. I was just driving along, minding my own business...

You have a guy strapped to the top of the car who doesn't seem to be doing too well.

Oh, that's Jim. He's had a little too much to drink. You shouldn't hold it against him, though. Or me, either.

We'd never do this if we were sober, you see.

I see. Is that what you do when you and your friends have been drinking? Strap them to the car and drive them home?

Oh no. You got that all wrong. We're not driving home.

We're on our way to another party, as a matter of fact.

Is that so? Are you aware you may be fined up to $1,000 for strapping a drunken person to the roof of your car?

I am now. If I'd known that before, rest assured I would have strapped him to the undercarriage, though.

You just don't get it, do you? You seem to have violated a number of traffic rules. You're drunk, there's a drunk person on the roof...

But I didn't exceed the speed limit, did I, officer? I mean, that should be taken into account as well.

You didn't exceed the speed of light. You exceeded the speed limit three times. You'll be lucky to get off with a couple years in jail.

Oh, I love this tough cop thing that you do. Would you mind doing it again? Please?

Oh what the hell. Ok. You wanna see your teeth sticking out of your turd tomorrow, pal? Huh? -- Yeah, this is much better than the last time. We should do this more often, you know.
