

family guy /3/ wrong decisions

do you have kids? were they born soon after the wedding? what is your relationship with them? do you like all of them equally? what do they think of you?

we have two kids. the first one was born shortly after the wedding. actually, if my wife hadn't been pregnant then, maybe we would have broken up instead of getting married. we weren't getting along all that well back then, in fact you could say we were drifting apart. sometimes I wish we had broken up. there's no point in keeping a relationship going that neither of you really cares about. each of us might have been living with a totally different kind of partner right now. anyway, we gave it a lot of thought and then decided not to get divorced. then we figured that a second child might make the relationship work. well, everyone knows it doesn't work that way. as for the kids, my relationship with them isn't as good as I would like it to be.

why is it that you and your kids don't really get along? whose fault is it? do you wish you had done something differently when they were younger? is there a way to fix this or will you have to get used to it?

I have to admit I wasn't such a good father. when the kids were little, I was always too busy working or hanging out with my friends. then one day I woke up and realized that they had grown up and didn't need me anymore. obviously, I would do things differently today but it's no use crying over spilt milk, right? I made some mistakes in my life but you know, a man's gotta do what a man's gotta do. please don't ask me any more questions or I'll cry. oh, I never should have allowed you to ask me all those questions. you've just made me realize that my life stinks.