

frasier's break /2/

frasier's ambitions

A pile of papers lying on the table catches Martin's eye. He walks over to the table and picks them up. They look like some sort of blueprints.

MARTIN: Hey, what are these?

FRASIER: Dad, be careful with those sketches. You know I've been telling you that I'm redecorating the apartment, I thought why don't I just design my own furniture.

MARTIN: Boy, you know you've been taking on a lot of big projects lately.

FRASIER: Yes well any minute now that phone will ring with another job offer, and this wonderful break will be over. I want to have achieved as many of my life's ambitions as possible. Gee, frankly, dad, you should take up a project or two.

MARTIN: Me! What are you talking about? I'm doing stuff all the time. I mean, just this weekend I taught Eddie a great new trick. Come on, I'll show you. It starts out that I point a gun at him.

FRASIER: I like it so far.

MARTIN: Then I say 'Freeze punk, it's all over'... It's all over! Oh come on Eddie, you're supposed to go like this. (rolls over on his back)

FRASIER: Now all we have to do is teach Eddie to say 'It's all over.'

---

now that I've got so much spare time, I may finally get around to doing... as long as I'm redesigning my apartment, I figured I might as well do... I've been caught red-handed! I guess this is the end of the line for me all you and Eddie do is stare at each other, if that's not a waste of time, what is? I wish you'd go easier on yourself. you know, don't knock yourself out