PHOEBE AND RACHEL'S CLASS; RACHEL WALKS IN

RACHEL: So, quick, what's this book about?

PHOEBE: You mean you didn't read this one either?!

RACHEL: Well, I was gonna, but I accidentally ended up reading something else. Vogue. So tell me about this Jane Eyre woman.

PHOEBE: No! You should've read it yourself.

RACHEL: Come on, Phoebe! Don't be such a goodie-goodie!

PHOEBE: Fine. So Jane Eyre, first of all, you'd think she's a woman, but in fact she's a robot. Yeah, no kidding, this book was years ahead of its time.

THE TEACHER WALKS INTO THE CLASSROOM

THE TEACHER: Sorry I'm late. Let's get started. So, what did everybody think about Jane Eyre?

PHOEBE: Rachel and I were just discussing it and she had some very interesting insights.

THE TEACHER: Well, go ahead, Rachel. I wonder what you have to say about the book.

RACHEL: Thank you. What struck me most when reading Jane Eyre was how the book was so ahead of its time.

THE TEACHER: I suppose you're talking about feminism, in which case I think you're absolutely right.

RACHEL: Well, feminism yes, but also the robots.

IT'S AFTER CLASS AND RACHEL CAN'T BELIEVE WHAT A FOOL SHE'S MADE OF HERSELF

RACHEL: That was so embarrassing! I mean, I was wondering why everyone was giving me those strange looks but I just figured they were impressed with my insights.

PHOEBE: I'm sorry. But I loved it when you started comparing Jane Eyre to Robocop.

RACHEL: How can you call that funny! I made a total ass of myself. I can't believe you let me go on and on like that.

PHOEBE: I snapped! You weren't taking the class seriously.

RACHEL: Phoebe, come on! What is the big deal? I thought we were doing this to have a good time.

PHOEBE: I did want to have a good time but I also wanted to learn. I always hear people talk about what they learned in high school and I never even went to high school.

RACHEL: Oh, I wish I knew you actually wanted to learn. I wouldn't have goofed off so much. I'm sorry.
