

friends: jurassic parka /2/ slipping away

ROSS: A million people went to see a movie about what I do, I wonder how many people would go see a movie called Jurassic Parka. A bunch of out-of-control jackets take over an island. Boy, what a thrilling story that would make.

RACHEL: If what I do is so lame, then why did you insist on coming with me this morning? Was it so that I wouldn't go with Mark?

ROSS: No. It's just, I feel like lately you're slipping away from me. With this new job, and all these new people, you've got this whole other life going on. I know it's dumb, but I hate that I'm not a part of it.

RACHEL: I actually like that you're not involved in that part of my life. See, it doesn't mean that I don't love you. Because I do. But my work, I'm out there on my own, and it's scary but I still love it, because it's mine.
