

friends ... ross' sandwich

DR. LEEDBETTER: Ross, may I have a _____ with you? We've been getting reports of some very angry behavior on your _____. _____ letters, refusal to meet deadlines, apparently people now _____ you mental. We want you to speak to a psychiatrist.

ROSS: Oh no, you don't understand. This is so silly. This is all because of a sandwich. You see, my sister makes these amazing turkey sandwiches. Her secret is, she puts an extra slice of gravy-soaked bread in the middle; I call it the Moist Maker. Anyway, I _____ my sandwich in the fridge over here...

DR. LEEDBETTER: Oh, you know what? I believe I ate it. I'm sorry about it.

ROSS: What do you _____ you ate it? Are you saying you ate my sandwich?

DR. LEEDBETTER: I didn't _____ to, it was a simple mistake. It _____ have happened to anyone.

ROSS: Oh really? Did you _____ it with your own turkey sandwich? Did you mistake it for a piece of old bread? Do you maybe remember _____ a note on top of it?

DR. LEEDBETTER: There may have _____ a note of some kind.

ROSS: Didn't the note _____ it was my sandwich?!

DR. LEEDBETTER: Now calm down. Come look in my office, some of it _____ still be in the trash. Why are you looking at me like that? Well, it was quite large. I would have _____ if I'd eaten all of it so I _____ to throw most of it away.

ROSS: You threw my sandwich away?! My sandwich? The _____ that I was looking forward to _____ so much? I can not believe my sandwich is _____.

been » burst » call » confuse » could » eating » gone » had » may » mean » mean » one » part » put » say » seeing » threatening » word