

joanna /2/ say more things like that

Rachel is angry with Joanna for making her look like a flirt during an interview.

Rachel: You know what? Why don't I just go _____ up my desk now?

Don't worry, I will be _____ the end of the day. Actually, I guess there's no _____ in sticking around 'til the end of the day.

Joanna: Wait. The truth is, I would ___ to lose a perfectly good assistant.

That's why I said all those things about your flirting and your drinking.

Rachel: What do you mean, my drinking?

Joanna: Oh, I _____ have said that after you left.

Rachel: Said what? Tell me exactly what you said.

Joanna: That you like to get totally drunk every _____ in a while.

Rachel: Oh my God. Oh, that's _____. I'm leaving. You are a horrible person.

Joanna: Wait. There's no reason to get all sensitive _____ it. What _____ I create a position for you? I might make you an assistant buyer in this department.

Rachel: Say more things like that and I may change my mind.

Joanna: You could _____ given your own office, and a _____ .

Rachel: I'd need an expense account.

Joanna: _____ .

Rachel: And an assistant.

Joanna: Sophie, get in here.
