

THE LADY WRITES VERONICA, THE STORY OF HER LIFE

Veronica started on a TEFL (Teaching English as a Foreign Language) course and was _____ to _____ in on you in UH at any moment. However, although she got very excited about it and _____ phoning me to ask about phrasal verbs and word games to play with foreign students, she didn't _____ the course, as - this will not surprise you - she was just too disorganized to _____ the work done in time. The story of her life, I'm afraid. I'm not sure whether she would in fact have gone on to teach, even if she had passed.

I have also been into that field, _____ applied to work in a language school in Cambridge. I gave your name as a reference, I hope you don't _____. I felt fairly sure nothing would come of it, and neither did it. As is _____ the case when you're over a certain age, I got no reply. I try for research jobs and administrative jobs and teaching jobs, but it's very difficult. I'm quite _____ the freedom, as a matter of fact, and am never bored and have lots of things to do. I'm still working on the famous report, _____ other things.
