

it's over /1/ the writing on the wall

Dear Jack, the writing has been on the wall for _____ six weeks now.

In about two _____ weeks, the writing on the wall will _____ to an end. My company has about $2,500 in the bank now, and _____ some miracle happens in the next two weeks, that last $2,500 will _____ one more paycheck to our only remaining paid employee, one last check to the lawyers, and then we collapse in a _____ . We will have probably $20,000 to $30,000 _____ of unpaid bills staring us in the _____ at that _____ , give or _____ some insane _____ .

I _____ I could say that it wasn't my fault, that I could believe in some “it's the market's fault!” excuse, but it ain't the market's fault. It's mine. I have become coldly analytical _____ my mistakes, to the _____ where I don't particularly feel as _____ I did much _____ anything right, including starting the company in the first _____ .
