

it's over /2/ complete ruin

But self-pity is not what I'm experiencing right now. It's more like _____ of what comes next. My financial life is a complete _____, with three months worth of bills _____ me and no idea when I'll be able to concentrate on getting a new job. Most of what I owe is in the form of an outrageous credit-card debt, which I _____ while trying to start the company in the first place.

I don't yet know what the consequences of my company's bankruptcy will be, whether I'm going to get personally _____ for some of the unpaid bills – I'm afraid to ask my lawyer _____ this point, because every time I talk to him he _____ me $200. I will find out the hard _____, I'm sure.

Our president, a friend I hired earlier this year, is _____ the phones, and _____ nowhere. Last week an old radio _____ of his told him he was _____ investing, but we'd have to give him a _____ new Harley Davidson if we ever went ipo or got _____. Naturally we promised him two _____ Harleys if we ever went ipo. He hasn't called us this week.

acquired » at » brand » buddy » charges »
 considering » facing » fucking » getting » nailed » ran up » ruin » terror » way » working