

Ruby Monday (3) Mr. Grease Monkey

AUGGIE: So, instead of going to college, I ended up spending four years in the navy. I watched men lose their arms and legs, I nearly _____ my head blown _____, and you, sweet Ruby McNutt, ran _____ and married that asshole, Bill.

RUBY: You didn't write to me for more than a year. What was I supposed to think?

AUGGIE: Yeah, well, I lost my pen. _____ the time I got a new one, I was _____ of paper.

RUBY: It was _____ with Bill before you even came home. You were pretty anxious to see me back then as _____ as I remember.

AUGGIE: You weren't so lukewarm yourself. At least at first.

RUBY: It fizzled, baby. That's the _____ it goes. But we had some good times, didn't we? It wasn't all bad.

AUGGIE: There were a couple of moments, I'll grant you that.

RUBY: And that's how Felicity came _____ the picture.

AUGGIE: You're conning me, sweetheart. I ain't responsible for no baby.

RUBY: Then why do you think I married Frank? Say what you like, but at least he gave my kid a name.

AUGGIE: Good old Frank. And how is fat Mr. Grease Monkey these days?

RUBY: Who the hell knows? He dropped _____ sight fifteen years ago.

AUGGIE: That won't _____, pumpkin. No mother waits fifteen years to tell a man he's a father. I wasn't born yesterday, you know.

RUBY: I didn't want to add _____ your worries. I thought I could handle it on my own. I was wrong. But the girl is in real trouble, Auggie, I'm not making that up.

AUGGIE: Nice try, old girl. I wish I could help you out, I really do. You know, _____ old time's sake. But all my spare cash is tied _____ in a business venture, and I haven't collected my profits yet. You caught me at the wrong time.

RUBY: Tough luck, eh? Is that what you're saying? You're a cold-hearted bastard, aren't you? How did you ever _____ to be so mean, Auggie?

by » do » far » for » get » got » into » off » off » out of » out » over » to » up » way