

rugby /2/ no more hugs

Later, Ross and Emily are returning from the rugby game.

Emily: Now, are you sure you don't want to go _____ a doctor?

Your eye's still popping out a little, I'll get some ice when we're home. You were _____ out there, _____ .

Ross: Oh, I was, wasn't I? I _____ a man twice my size cry. I mean, I haven't _____ that since I was four and I washed my dad's Porsche _____ rocks.

Emily: You really enjoyed yourself, didn't you?

Ross: Are you kidding? I hurt three huge men, I _____ a guy a bloody nose, I mean I shouldn't be proud _____ it but I really am. And it's all _____ of you, wonderful, amazing you.

Emily: I think you've got _____ .

Ross: No, I'm serious. Thank you.

Emily: You're welcome. Give me a _____ . Oh, I'm sorry. Did I hurt you?

Ross: It's _____ the pain. Come on, one _____ hug. Uh, y'know what? Maybe it's not worth it.

amazing » because » concussion » done » gave » hug » made » more » of » see » though » with » worth