

smoke: cyrus and louisa /2/ like nobody's business

AUNT EM: What I'm saying is Louisa drove off in Cyrus's car and went with him for a drink. What I'm saying is that he had _____ much to drink and that when they finished their little talk three hours later and got back in the car, he was in no _____ to drive. But he drove the car _____, and before he could get her back to where she lived, the damn fool ran a red light and went _____ into a truck. Louisa _____ thrown through the windshield and was killed. Cyrus lived, but he came out of it a cripple. His left arm was so mangled, the doctors had to cut it _____. Small punishment for what he did, if you _____ me.

PAUL: Jesus.

AUNT EM: Jesus had nothing to do with it. If he'd been _____, he would have seen to it that things _____ out the opposite from what they did.

PAUL: It can't have _____ easy on him. Walking around with that on his _____ all these years.

AUNT EM: No, I don't suppose it has. He was _____ up like nobody's business in that hospital when he found out Louisa was dead.

PAUL: And he's never tried to get in _____ with his son?

AUNT EM: Henry told Cyrus he'd kill him if he ever showed his face around our house again. When Henry makes a _____ like that, people _____ to take him seriously.

anyway » ask » been » broken » conscience » got » involved » off » shape » straight » tend » threat » too » touch » worked