

Towards the end of last term Hank was finally thrown out of college, and I'm sure I hardly need to tell you why, having given you all the painful details letter by letter over the last few months.

He continued to fall behind in his work, never caught up with the outstanding work he had neglected earlier, was given chance after chance after chance but kept making up excuses and finally didn't even bother to go to college.

Even getting him out of bed has been a struggle.

We were very disappointed as we had been trying every way we could think of to get him working and through his exams.

Frankly, I don't see how you guys can think that kind of thing is funny. As if deadly accidents involving horse asses are funny. Or accidents involving banana peels or anvils or fishing boats, for that matter.

If I had my way, it would be illegal to put garbage like that on television.

Vinnie's got what it takes to make it big. He'll be able to accomplish anything he wants. Mark my words, he's got a big future in movies.