

They're ready to close our deal except your agent is holding it up.

Where does that leave me? I'm worried you'll drop me and find another assistant.

Even if that was her plan, it's still my career and I'm calling the shots, there is no way I would continue doing this.

The blackout hit just as the elevator doors opened. I stood in the hallway trying to decide whether to come back in here or take my chances on the dark streets with the muggers and the weirdoes.

You're sloppy, you've got no sense of discipline, but people like you. Me, I'm disciplined, I'm organised, I'm dedicated to my career. Result? Total asshole despised by everyone. Why is that?

The trouble is you're too busy trying to be successful. – What about all the time I spent sucking up to the captain even though he was a total moron? I went out of my way to get him to like me.